Breathability

In technical materials, breathability refers to the ability to allow water vapour to escape. The fibres wick the moisture away from the skin very quickly. Breathability is measured in grams (g) of water vapour per square metre (m²) over 24 hours.

For a breathability of 5000 in 24 hours, for example, 5000 g of water vapour exits through one square metre of this fabric.

Waterproof

The so-called water column rating in mm is the index for watertightness. It indicates the water pressure at which a surface becomes permeable to water. The DIN standard for the "waterproof" label is a water column rating of 1300 mm. The seams of products with this symbol are also waterproof.

Water-resistant

Textiles that have either a special surface treatment or a membrane count as water-repellent. Products with this symbol generally have a waterproof upper material and a water column, the seams are however not waterproof. Sealing the many seams of quilted-look products in particular is not possible.

Windproof

The penetration of wind cools down the body because the warm air layer is "blown away". This makes the outside temperature feel colder than it actually is (wind chill effect).

Stretch

Perfect fit

The material is elastic, moving as you move.

Feather-light

Here, very lightweight material is transformed into extremely durable and comfortable functional clothing.

Each layer of this clothing is designed to make it easier for the body to maintain a constant temperature.

The task of the interior material is to wick moisture away from the body and transfer it to the next layer. Thus the body can maintain a constant temperature. The middle layer effectively regulates body heat. The materials used here are optimal for wicking moisture to the outside and effectively surrounding the body in a warm cushion of air.

The outermost layer of the layered clothing protects against wind, water and snow, while maintaining optimum breathability at the same time. This layer also retains body heat.

wicking

The fibre is specially treated so that moisture is quickly transported to the outside and the body is not cooled down!

quick-drying

Fast-drying material because the fibre does not absorb any moisture, but conducts it to the outside instead!

Recycled

The material consists entirely or partially of recycled fibres, mainly recovered from old materials. The warp, weft or both threads can be made from recycled raw materials.

Thermo Riding Skirt

New: our classic thermal riding skirt is now not only equipped with a practical zip fastener, but the waistband has also been optimised so that dirt, such as hay or straw, does not stick so easily. In addition, leg loops ensure that the thermal riding skirt always fits correctly. The fluffy, soft fleece inside keeps you nice and warm and ensures a comfortable fit. With a water column of 10,000 mm, the skirt is water-resistant and provides reliable protection from the wet. At the same time, it remains breathable with a capacity of 3000 g/m²/24 h, so that moisture can escape from the inside to the outside.

- Waistband with hook-and-loop fastener
- fleecy, soft inner

Cooler Blanket Light

New: The Covalliero Light Sweat Blanket with separate neck section is a highly functional blanket that enables particularly fast sweating thanks to the special polyester microfibre waffle fabric. The innovative combination of materials is sweat-absorbent, quick-drying and breathable, which promotes the horse's well-being - ideal for stable, transport and competition use. Thanks to its thin structure, it is also ideal as a hygienic blanket and can be conveniently placed underneath when trying on other blankets, for example.

- ideal for stable or transport
- Metal quick-release fasteners in the chest and stomach area
- adjustable and removable cross straps
- with hook-and-loop fasteners at the neck for an ideal fit
- machine washable at 30 °C
- Material: 100 % Polyester

Winter Blanket RugBe 100

The Covalliero outdoor blanket is the ideal choice for wet and cold autumn and winter days. With its 100 g thermal fleece, it keeps your horse reliably warm, while the highly water-resistant outer material (600 denier, up to 5000 mm water column) protects it from the wet. The anatomically padded withers area provides additional comfort and the breathable material ensures optimum temperature equalisation.

- The ideal horse blanket for cold, wet autumn and winter days
- anatomically upholstered instep area for greater wearing comfort
- keeps the horse dry from the outside and regulates temperature
- filled with warm 100 g thermal fleece
- pleasant internal lining that does not chafe the coat
- Classic cut
- surcingle on belly
- with tail flap, leg straps and synthetic rubber withers cushioning
- 600 Denier polyester outer material
- extremely water-repellent up to a 5000 mm water column
- breathable to 3,000 gsm/24 h
- Material: 100 % Polyester
